

Does Your Thinking Limit Your Success?

Jean O'Neill

Of course it does! Join us for a dynamic, stimulating event and see the correlation between our "thoughts" and the results we have in our lives. Be ready to participate in experiential exercises that demonstrate how our perspectives are limited and why. You'll walk away with:

- Ways to expand your pre-programmed notions about a particular situation
- A clearer picture of the perspectives you currently have that are limited
- Tools you can use to break out of these limitations
- An experience that making money doesn't have to be difficult
- Knowledge of what it takes to make better choices and thereby improve the quality of your life
- Applications of the experience to your profession

About the Speaker

Jean O'Neill graduated from Highland School of Nursing in Oakland in 1968 and worked as a registered nurse until 1976, when she moved into nursing administration. In 1982 she returned to school at Sonoma State University and got her BSN, and in 1985 she earned her Masters in Public Administration from Hayward State University. Most recently, Jean worked for Contra Costa County as the Director of Nurses for 11 health centers throughout the county. In 1987, Jean discovered her love of personal development and began taking seminars in the areas of communication, personal presentation, business, productivity and relationships. As a person clearly focused on helping others, Jean was drawn to the founders of Productive Learning and Leisure and the work she saw them doing with individuals as well as companies. She began working for the company part-time when it was formed in 1993 while still holding a full-time position as Director of Nurses. Now that Jean has formally retired from the nursing profession she has dedicated her "second career" to her involvement in the training and seminar programs of Productive Learning & Leisure. She is currently both a presenter as well as a sales support specialist.
